The director was recently on hand to celebrate the film's success at the Toronto International Film Festival, and in the video posted above he announces that the second instalment, starring Chadwick Boseman, will be set in Africa and will be called Black Leopard, Red Wolf. Black Panther sparked international excitement at this year's Toronto Film Festival when it debuted at a screening full of outsize extras and gave Marvel a major pop at the movie box office. The movie, which opened up on February 16 in the US, made over $1.3 billion. However, Marvel doesn't just see the movie as a massive success - they are building the property on for a successful sequels. This content is imported from YouTube. You may be
