Cosmic Ray is a fast-paced twin-stick shooter in which you fly a customizable ship through a randomly generated universe, saving a newly terraformed planet from incoming asteroid clusters and destroying the space pirate menace threatening it. Over a dozen different environments and lifeforms await your arrival and you'll have to adapt your strategy to survive. Key Features: • About 250 unique gameplay locations. • Dozens of weapons and upgrades. • Planets to explore. • A soothing soundtrack. A REVIEW by Mark S. I'm gonna start this review off by saying I absolutely love the hectic nature of space shooter, twin-stick shooters, or in this case, "Cosmic Ray." Each planet is completely different and the game has enough variety to keep the player entertained for a long time. The game is meant for anyone and everyone to play and enjoy, and this is evident from the core gameplay to the various colors that adorn the sides of your ship. The best thing about the game is that it has a lovely music fit for your needs, and a great RTS oriented design. It plays very well on the PC platform, with tight controls and an amazing mix of a calm ambiance with an invigorating mix of explosions and systems. I, and so many other people, have been waiting for something like this to hit the Playstation, but after seeing the game here, it seems like its being released by a publisher that really cares about its customer's needs. So, would I recommend the game? Totally. Keep in mind that this is only my first impression of the game, and that I can't wait to try out the game. I love twin-stick shooters that last for 10+ hours. If you're looking for such a game that's also lighthearted and soothing, then Cosmic Ray is truly a must buy.
