The smooth metal spokes of Giora Keinan's Chia Pet model are made of a light, flexible plastic that has good resistance to breakage and little wear. It was the shape of the spokes that lead Keinan to the design. When he worked as a physicist, he knew that when spokes joined the rim of a bicycle wheel, they could bend and distort the shape of the wheel. To prevent this, the bicycle wheels were covered with a hard plastic called neoprene. Keinan designed a Chia Pet wheel that didn't look like one. Like the spokes of a bicycle, the spokes of the Chia Pet wheel were round. But they were also able to follow the contour of the rim and form a shape that would be difficult for a bicycle wheel to emulate. Keinan understood that the Chia Pet's shape was key. Unlike a regular Chia Pet, which sits on the floor and grows from a seed, Chia Pets are wheeled toys -- they are "self-moving" in the same way that a kid pushes a wheeled toy across the ground. "This is like how we walk," says Keinan. "We have a foot, and we push it forward, and our leg follows it." Q: Как скачать? Ответ: в описании под названием "Скачать" или "Купить", есть
